Martins Gone for Season Goose in Doghouse

There was a strange silence overhead and I looked up at my two martin houses — empty and closed for the season. It was July 4, and my purple martins had ended another nesting period in Arkansas.

And right on schedule, too, as I discovered when checking the record. This year the martins arrived March 15 and left July 4. In 1965 they arrived March 14 and left on July 4.

In 1963 the dates were March 21 and July 17. In 1962, when I started keeping records, I neglected to write down the arrival date, but the birds left on July 5.

They may reappear in about a week, but only for a day or so. The nesting season is over and the martins take their youngsters out for a shakedown cruise around the local countryside, pay a last visit to the old home box — and then begin assembling in vast flocks along the Gulf Coast for the long trip to South America.

It's a reminder to humans that Autumn's just around the corner — when Summer has just begun.

My Mallard duck population in the "back 40" has doubled with the Spring crop of ducklings — but I'm having no luck with the Canada geese.

I blame it all on Mrs. Grundy — the name I give to my native white goose because she is always talking and bossing her gander.

The native white geese were big pals of the mated pair of 3-year-old Canadian Honkers I got from near Omaha last summer, and apparently they made a big deal for a community nest.

There were 17 big eggs and the Canada hen took her first turn with them. Then she alternated with Mrs. Grundy. Then Mrs. Grundy and her big lip took over entirely — and the operation was a bust.

Now Mrs. Grundy, looking wan and disgusted and about 5 pounds lighter, has given up — and relations have cooled off between the Honkers and the Natives.

Home Folks Rally for Pilkinton

James Pilkinton

Hope will be the site of a giant political rally tonight honoring Judge James H. Pilkinton, a native son, who is a candidate for Lieutenant Governor of Arkansas.

Other candidates for county district and state offices have been invited to attend, and will be given time to speak, including those seeking the office of Governor.

George Frazier, Hope business leader, has served as a general chairman of the arrangement committee planning the rally. He has been assisted by many others from this and surrounding communities.

The program will get under way in front of the Hempstead County Courthouse with music at 7:00 o'clock p.m. furnished by Sammy Strong and his string band. The speaking will begin promptly at 7:30 and Municipal Judge John L. Wilson will serve as Master of Ceremonies. Albert Graves, Hope Attorney, will introduce Judge Pilkinton, who will deliver the principal address of the evening.

Mr. Frazier pointed out that this would probably be the only big political rally of its kind in Southwest Arkansas prior to the Democratic primaries, and urged everyone to attend.

"If Judge Pilkinton is elected Lieutenant Governor the people of this area will ask, and expect him to do things for us that might not otherwise be possible," Mr. Frazier said. "The campaign he is waging is a credit to Hope and Hempstead County, and to Southwest Arkansas. Let us show our appreciation by attending this home-town rally being given in his honor," Mr. Frazier added.

Never Meets That Kind of Mosquito

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail:

Some mosquitoes prefer feeding on birds, snakes — or even plants — to people. But somehow we never seem to meet that kind.

In Sweden, by law, every worker has to be given at least three weeks of vacation.

Does your wife complain about her heavy housework? Well, General Electric has come up with "Hardiman," a steel set of mechanical muscles worn like an outside skeleton, that enables a man to lift 1,500 pounds easily. Why not surprise your wife with one next Christmas?

For people looking for unusual organizations to join, there is one called the Texas Barbed Wire Collectors Association.

If your net fish sprains a fin or comes down with some other ailment in Japan, you can take it to a fish hospital for treatment.

What is good for General Motors is also good for the diaper industry. The giant car company is the nation's leading diaper customer. It uses them as polishing cloths.

Nothing Is Stirring on Capitol Hill

By KELLY SMITH
WASHINGTON (AP) — 'Twas the midsummer recess on Capitol Hill. Not a thing was stirring, not even a bill.

From office to office, each corridor and hall. Senate and House staffs were having a ball. "A holiday!" "no memos!" came the refrain. "The congressman's home kissing babies again!"

With the boss gone, there's more time for brunch. More time for flirting, for knitting and lunch.

Two hours at the beauty shop, nobody's countin'. A walk on the lawn, leisurely lunch by the fountain.

No buzzers for roll calls, fewer phones jingling. Get on the elevator without even ringing.

Kennedy's rafting, Morse went to Wisconsin. Someone's in the White House and it isn't Johnson.

Fulbright's out of pocket and Teddy went north. Proxmire had five parades to celebrate his fourth.

Tourists still flock to the Capitol with questions. With children, sun tan oil and suggestions.

In big party chambers amid great dins, workmen are hammering and cleaning out bins.

Least Congress return Monday and wait in dismay, some staffs put in work before they play.

One office has installed a new red rug. Owner Joe Karth will have reason to be smug.

Another office proved itself deftly adroit by fixing a typewriter for Nedzi of Detroit.

Voters ignore the recess and write stacks of mail. Efforts to ignore it are of no avail.

It comes by the bushel, fills all the desks. There are demands to be answered, many requests.

So between brunches and lunches and beauty shop, there's a continuous huddle by the old mail drop.

Then it's time for coffee, milk and tea. But one is missing — where can she be?

"It's Goldie Pence of the Stennis compound. 'My big man,' she said, 'was not out of town.'"

Hoffa Gains Full Power Over Union

By NEIL GILBRIDE
AP Labor Writer
MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — James R. Hoffa, Teamsters union president, gathers all possible remaining strings of power into his hands today before certain re-election to a five-year term he might have to finish in prison.

Then, Teamsters insiders say, begins the waiting game to see who emerges in the power struggle certain to follow if Hoffa loses his jury-tampering and mail-fraud appeals.

Leading candidates are Frank Fitzsimmons, whom Hoffa has handpicked to succeed him; Harold Gibbons, Hoffa's former chief aide until a bitter personal break; and Einar Mohn, who narrowly missed the top job when Hoffa succeeded the jailed Dave Beck in 1957.

All three are among 13 Teamsters vice presidents maneuvering in the background of the current thunderous support of Hoffa by some 2,000 convention delegates.

"Keep your eye on Dusty Miller," one informant said in referring to Vice President Murray W. Miller, 50, of Chicago, the youngest of the union's hierarchy.

"It won't happen overnight and Dusty has time and age on his side," this source said.

Hoffa, after winning a pay raise from $75,000 to $100,000 a year and the authority to appoint Fitzsimmons as his successor, will ram through today another resolution preventing the union from kicking him out for any past offenses that may land him in jail.

This resolution says no elected union officer can be removed from office except for "actions occurring during their current term of office."

Since this will be passed before Hoffa's re-election it would prevent the union from removing him because of the 1964 convictions that led to his impending 13-year prison sentences.

The convention also created the new post of general vice president, which Hoffa has reserved for Fitzsimmons as his heir apparent.

Would Change Apportionment

EL DORADO, Ark. (AP) — Richard S. Arnold of Texarkana, a Democratic candidate for 4th District congressman, said Wednesday he favored having one house of a state legislature based on a something other than population.

Arnold said the U.S. Constitution should be amended to ensure that rural areas and small towns have fair representation in state legislatures.

He endorsed the proposed Everett Dirksen amendment which would modify the U.S. Supreme Court's recent one-man, one-vote decision over legislative apportionment.

Purge Linelight

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) — President Tito was reported today following up his purge of Yugoslavia's No. 2 Communist with wide-ranging dismissals in the courts, military, government and party.

Some Yugoslavs speculated that the next top official to fall might be Vojin Lukic, a member of the Communist party central committee and interior minister from 1963 to 1965.

The key factor in the dismissals appeared to be Tito's desire to end opposition to his liberal economic program.

LBJ Trying to Get Out of Red Some

By EDMOND LE BRETON
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson's administration is pushing a variety of measures to erase billions in red ink from the budget without actually cutting down government programs.

Republicans have been crying foul, contending the administration is deceiving the voters and making them pay the costs of what the GOP calls the deception. But so far, Congress has balked at only one of the various proposals that require legislative approval.

While the moves differ, the main principles involved are substituting private for public capital in lending programs, even if the switch costs more in interest, and timing collections to produce budget windfalls.

The administration, denying any purpose to deceive, contends attracting private capital into programs that previously had to be financed by the government is sound public policy — even if it means the Treasury has to put up funds to cover interest differentials.

On Tuesday, Johnson told a news conference the deficit for fiscal 1966 would be far below the $4.4 billion estimated in January, although he said final figures won't be in for several weeks.

The administration's biggest victory to date was the enactment, over solid Republican opposition, of the Participation Sales Act of 1966, expected to subtract $4.2 billion from the spending side of this year's budget without reducing the funds available to any agency.

Congressional committees, however, turned down Johnson when he asked for changes in the popular national defense education loan program. He wanted to take $340 million out of the budget during two fiscal years by substituting government guarantees of private loans for direct government loans to students.

Colleges protested that many students would be unable to get bank loans in time to continue their studies without interruption, and the House Education and Labor Committee rejected even a compromise that would have stretched out the transition. The Appropriations Committee brought out legislation to make loan funds available next school year as in the past.

The issues involved in the Participation Sales Act are more complex. Its proponents argued that it simply extends the long-established practice of selling to private investors assets in the form of loans receivable held by the government.

The Federal National Mortgage Association, commonly called Fannie Mae, which operates on a combination of government and private capital, for years has bought home mortgages from private investors to pump more funds as needed into the housing mortgage market.

Oil Depots at Haiphong Are Bombed

By ROBERT TUCKMAN
SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — U.S. Navy planes today bombed the oil storage depot in the Haiphong dock area two miles northeast of the heart of the city for the second time, the U.S. military command announced.

The Haiphong depot, through which 95 per cent North Viet Nam's petroleum supplies move, was first bombed on June 29 along with another major depot three miles from the heart of Hanoi. The attacks set off a worldwide debate.

A U.S. spokesman said A4 Skyhawks from the aircraft carrier Hancock struck the fuel installation at 1 p.m. and that pilots reported "all bombs on target."

The spokesman said one Skyhawk was shot down by anti-aircraft fire but the pilot was rescued.

He said pilots saw no ships at the piers near the oil depot but that there were three ships in the outer harbor. The ships apparently were not attacked.

Earlier the U.S. command announced American planes flew a record 113 missions against North Viet Nam Wednesday and eluded four surface-to-air missiles, but two of the raiders were shot down, apparently by conventional ground fire. The three pilots were listed as missing.

The U.S. command again reported no significant ground action by American forces. But the South Vietnamese army announced its third major military success

Rusk Issues a Warning to Red China

By JOHN RODERICK
KYOTO, Japan (AP) — Secretary of State Dean Rusk warned Red China today that the United States will retaliate "with whatever means would be required" if it launches a nuclear attack against any of America's Asian allies.

Asked at a news conference if the United States is prepared to reply with atomic bombs if one of its Asian allies is attacked with nuclear weapons, Rusk paused, then answered with quiet deliberation:

"I can't think of anything more insane than an attack with nuclear weapons on an ally of the United States in Asia."

"We would meet our obligations under our mutual security treaties with whatever means would be required."

Though Communist China was not referred to either in the question or the answer, the exchange followed a discussion of Chinese nuclear testing and a statement by Rusk that the United States will take further development of Chinese nuclear capability "fully into account in our own defense arrangements."

Rusk held the news conference with Japanese Foreign Minister Etsusaburo Shima at his side after the end of a three-day meeting of U. S. and Japan

Black Power Defies Any Definition
By DON MCKEE
ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — A leader of the new "black power" faction within the civil rights movement defines the term as political strength interwoven with an attempt to build stronger racial pride among Negroes.

"We just want to get the white people off our backs. That's all we want," said Stokely Carmichael, national chairman of the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee and a leading advocate of "black power."

Carmichael, 25, who has been SNCC chairman nearly two months, said in an interview at his Atlanta office that the new philosophy might split the civil rights movement.

He said the SNCC's objective is to build political power for Negroes, instill within them a determination to make their own decisions—about civil rights and anything else—and to create a sense of identity with colored peoples of the world, particularly Africans.

But, the SNCC chairman said, the new move is not antiwhite nor black supremacist. Anti-white violence by Negroes is merely a fear of white persons, he said.

Life Unfair Always, Said Late President

By BARRY SCHWEID

WASHINGTON (AP) — "There is always inequity in life," President John F. Kennedy said in March 1962.

"Some men are killed in a war and some men are wounded," he added, "and some men never leave the country, and some are stationed in the Antarctic and some are stationed in San Francisco."

"It's very hard in military or in personal life to assure complete equality. Life is unfair."

With this off-the-cuff statement on the Berlin crisis callup of reserves, the President was commenting at a news conference on the essentially unequal way America meets its military needs: calling some men to service and allowing others to enjoy the freedom of civilian life.

The statement may have satisfied the sophisticated and the pragmatic, but the moral question remained unanswered. It has swelled, with a widening war in Viet Nam and mounting casualties, to a national debate.

This past weekend, President Johnson named a 20-man civilian panel to take a broad look at the draft, focusing on its fairness and other factors.

In the meantime, the squawks are likely to continue.

While a football knee keeps Joe Namath from service, the young man in the stands who couldn't throw a football 15 yards is sent packing to training camp. Cassius Clay flunks his mental test while a college graduate plugging targets on a rifle range wonders how bright you have to be even in the modern Army.

And, perhaps most irksome, the men in the jungles of Viet Nam — and their families — know Joe College is just about home free if he can maintain passably fair grades, get married and raise a family before his deferred number comes up at the local draft board.

"There's not a damn thing fair about the present system," Rep. Lucien N. Nedzi, a Michigan Democrat who is a member of the House Armed Services Committee, said in exasperation 10 days ago during the panel's study of the Selective Service System.

If an end to the draft were in sight or if an all-volunteer armed force could be attracted the complaints probably would subside. But neither is likely.

One would depend on a return to pro-Korea military needs. Pentagon manpower chief Thomas D. Morris told the committee last week, the other on pay boosts of $8 billion to $9 billion for enlisted men alone — an increase which Morris said would be impracticable.

In April 1964, Johnson, who had helped legislate the first peacetime draft in 1940, set Selective Service the military departments, the Census Bureau, the Labor Department and the Public Health Service to work on the problem.

The results largely remain in the security deep-freeze, but Morris skimmed off the cream last week.

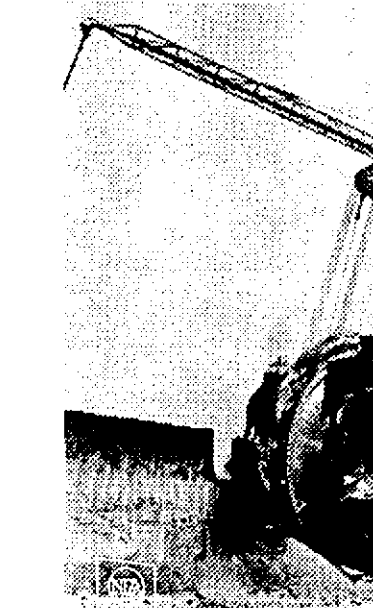

The Pentagon favors taking men 19 to 20 ahead of older men, he said, and men over 26 who received a college deferment should be taken in the same order as single men.

Now the 20-man civilian committee will have a go at it.

When its report, due in six months, is in, Johnson said in a statement, "we will then offer to the American people that course of action which we believe to be best designed to protect the nation's freedom with the least and most equitable burden on our society."

Statements on Viet Nam Weren't New

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson's latest statements on the American role in Viet Nam weren't new — he had said it all before — but they were unyielding and kept open a grim window on the future.

Critics of the war and his handling of it have been on his back for months but he didn't bend an inch to mollify them. In his speeches in Omaha and Des Moines Thursday he said the United States would see this war through.

But in explaining this country's involvement in the present struggle he raised the prospect of American involvement in other Viet Nams, bigger or smaller, around the world in the future.

This was not the first time he had indicated that.

"We are obligated," he said, "to help those whose rights are threatened by force."

"If one government uses force to violate another people's rights, we cannot ignore the injustice, the threat to our own rights, and the danger to world peace."

He explained the case of South Viet Nam.

The North Vietnamese are trying to deny the South Vietnamese the right to build their own nation, the South Vietnamese asked U.S. help, and Johnson said: "Only if we have abandoned our respect for the rights of other people can we turn from their plea."

In a speech more than a year ago Johnson said approximately the same thing: "Around the globe, from Berlin to Thailand, are people whose well-being rests, in part, on the belief that they can count on us if they are attacked."

And at the end of his Omaha talk Thursday he added this: "There can be only one decision in Viet Nam. We shall see this through. We shall persist. We shall succeed."

"There are many nations, large and small, whose security depends on the reliability of our word and our power, the word of the United States must remain a trust men can live by and live with and depend on."

Johnson, known to believe he has laid out his views on Viet Nam repeatedly, had remained relatively quiet in recent months as the critics battered away at him.

The fact that Thursday's talk was just a rehash of what he has said before would bear out his belief that he has already fully presented this government's case.

He probably decided further explication was needed because just the day before he ordered the bombing of the Communist oil depots around Hanoi and Haiphong in North Viet Nam.

This, too, was a repetition, but in tactics. Earlier this year, after ordering the resumption of bombing North Viet Nam following a 37-day lay-off, he held a news conference to explain it.

There's no doubt his critics get under his skin. He may start to make a speech from a prepared text that says nothing unpleasant about his critics.

Then he thinks of them, gets overheated, and as he goes along adds some thoughts that were not in writing. It happened Thursday at Omaha when he departed from the written speech to complain about the critics:

"Sometimes I almost develop stomach ulcers just listening" to some of the people who say he's "troubled, confused, and frustrated" by the war.

Announcement.....

To The
Medicare Patients
Of
Hempstead County

The Doctors of the Hempstead County Medical Society have decided not to participate in the Physicians part (Part B) or the Medicare Program to the extent of not accepting assignments from the patient for the Social Security to pay their fees directly to us. This does not mean that we will not care for our Medicare patients. It does mean that our patients are responsible for paying us our fees. The patient can then submit a claim to the Social Security, thru their carrier, for reimbursement in the amount that the Medicare allows. The carrier for the State of Arkansas will be Blue-Cross-Blue Shield. We realize that many of you will not know how to file for reimbursement. Our office will be glad to assist you.

The above decision was made after many months of worry and consideration and we believe that it is the right decision. In this way we believe that the patient-physician relationship will not be jeopardized by the involvement of a third party; namely the Social Security Administration or its Carrier.

Fire Is After This Family

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Four months ago, Virgil Roller made the final payment on furniture he bought after his home was destroyed by fire in 1963.

Fire struck again recently, destroying most of the family's clothing and furnishings. No one was injured.

Man never fastened one end of a chain around the neck of his brother, that God did not fasten the other end around the neck of the oppressor.—Alphonse de Lamartine, French poet.

FAMILY PICNIC

A family picnic at the Hope Country Club on Independence Day saw about 100 people in attendance. In the clubhouse the mantle held a clever decoration featuring firecrackers, and everyone seemed to have a bang-up good time.

Zinnias and other summer flowers decorated points of interest, and the serving tables were filled with good food brought by each family. Host couples were Mr. and Mrs. Talbot Feldt, Jr., Guy Grigg, Lowell Harris, Roy Warren, H. W. Monts, and Johnny Cox.

Coming and Going

The Jimmy Benson family, en route from McGuire AFB, N.J., to their new home in Dallas, spent the holidays with Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Benson and Mrs. Trula Coffee. Mr. Benson will be associated with Braniff Airlines in Dallas.

Wedding Vows Are Repeated

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Hugg

The wedding of Miss Glenda Thurman and Donald Hugg was an event of Saturday evening, June 25 at the Bells Chapel Church of the Nazarene in Bleavins. The Rev. Wayne Bell officiated at the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Thurman of Bleavins.

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Dallas Hugg of Bleavins.

After a short wedding trip, the couple will be at home in

The altar was decorated by baskets of gladioli and mums. Two matching stands of greenery flanked by two seven branch candelabras were on either side of the ceremony.

Preceding the ceremony, Mrs. Arthur Sewell provided a program of nuptial music. Miss Brenda White sang, "Always". Guests were asked to register in the church building by Mrs. Carol West of Little Rock.

Doug Neese and Bobby Brotherton seated the guests. Candle-lighters were Phil Thurman, brother of the bride, and Johnny White.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a slender floor length gown of white satin. The fitted bodice was overlaid with scalloped flowered lace. A chapel length train of white satin was attached at the back of the empire waistline with a band of satin. Long fitted lace sleeves tapered to lily points over her fingers. She carried gladioli and showers of stephanotis. The veil fell in tiers from a large white rose.

Miss Patsy Thurman, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Janice Hugg, sister of the groom; and Miss Mary Ann White was junior bridesmaid. They wore identical dresses of blue, and carried bouquets of yellow daisies.

Larry Hugg served his brother as best man. Groomsman was Norman Hugg, brother of the groom. Tim White was ring bearer.

Mrs. Thurman was attired in a green and white dress with a green linen coat and matching accessories. Mrs. Hugg, chose a dress of navy blue with white accessories. Each wore a corsage of yellow stephanotis.

For travel the bride selected a pink suit and planned a corsage from her bouquet at her shoulder.

After a short wedding trip, the couple will be at home in Crystal Springs, Miss., where Mr. Hugg is stationed with the U.S. Air Force.

Out-of-town guests included: Mrs. Homer Glen White, Johnny Tim, Mary Ann of Kansas City, Kan., Miss Mary Ann White and Mrs. Carol West, Kim and Stevie and Mrs. Buddy Steed, Retha, Richard and Dwight of Little Rock.

Television and Radio

ASTAR OF AN ABC adventure series, Richard Basehart has a list of acting credits stretching from Broadway and "Othello" to films including "La Karamazov."

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — People seem continually surprised to find me playing Adm. Nelson on "Voyage To the Bottom Of the Sea," and inevitably I am asked to compare acting in a science-fiction series for television with the work I've done on the stage and screen.

Most actors who have worked in all three media will prefer acting on the P.M. no exception. Only on the stage is the success of the production, in any given performance, almost solely dependent upon the actors. The producer and director are relegated to the audience before the opening-night curtain goes up.

Motion pictures and television are the director's media. With the cameraman and the film editor, he determines what the audience will eventually see, not the actor. On-stage an actor creates and hopes to refine continually his characterization before a live audience. A film is done in disconnected fragments in the relative isolation of a sound stage.

In favoring stage performances, however, too many actors fail to mention the merits of the other two mediums. Not the least of these is the financial reward for film work, which far exceeds that of the stage. But even setting finances aside, films and television have unique attractions for an actor. A stage performance, as an art form, is lost when the curtain comes down. And the relative permanency of a motion picture, if it was well done, appeals to all of us. On the other hand, cringing before television's late movies, most actors who have worked in them might settle for a deal less permanency. Then, too, the film offers the chance for greater variety, both vocally and physically. With a camera and microphone close at hand, a whisper or a raised eyebrow can convey an idea that would be lost on the stage.

In stage rehearsals a cast always hits a sag period, usually about the third week, during which an element of boredom creeps in. Since a movie company rehearses intensively just a few pages of script a day, the sag period comes more quickly, and the cameras often record it, resulting in an uneven product.

Television, however, is strangely enhanced by the pressure of time. It combines many of film making's methods for decreasing error while offering some of the immediacy of the stage. There is no sag period because time doesn't allow it—the actor must deal with what is right here, right now.

As a result, there are fewer cases of nerves among television actors. You do the best you can at any particular moment. It doesn't always work, but at least you are always on the upgrade. The actor adds shading to his character over a season or two, not in the course of a single story.

Girls And What To Do About Them

Dear Helen: If girls weren't so possessive and aggressive they'd be better off.

You date a girl once and she figures she's going steady with you. Date her twice, and, boy you've had it! You can't get rid of her without feeling like a heel.

When girls write in and ask what did they do wrong and why doesn't he call again, you'd better tell them: dames scare guys off. They sit so close to us that we can't drive and hang on to our arms, and expect us to park on the first date, and then if we get too turned on, they're shocked, or act like it.

I'd sure like to find a girl that I could date without her trying to make me propose, one way or another. — Not Hunting A Huntress

Dear Not: They're around, chum. Keep looking. — H.

Dear Helen: This is Able's Irish Rose in reverse. Except I'm not thinking of marry my Catholic boy friend, I just want to be friends with him. My whole family is so Orthodox they won't even eat Irish stew.

My father says I must see Jewish boy, and you'll get a big inheritance.

I don't know any nice Jewish boys, because all the nice ones are already spoken for by nice Jewish girls whose parents insist on it. The field is pretty limited, believe me!

So until I find one, why can't I have friends of other faiths? They can't see that my Pat is a nice, respectful, kind, hard working boy. All they can think of is, "He isn't one of us." — Becky

Dear Becky: Right or wrong, a nice Jewish girl obeys her parents. But perhaps you can sway them, once they meet Pat and find out he doesn't have snakes in his hair and horns growing out of his forehead.

Friendships among other faiths are as necessary for a girl as for her father. He'd go bankrupt fast if he limited his business strictly to Jewish customers. — H.

Dear Helen: I was engaged to a girl and she broke it off because she found someone else. I tried to get over her by dating Janet (I'll call her), and we drifted into being engaged.

When the first girl (let's call her Peg) heard about this, she told me I was making a big mistake, and then she told me a lot of bad things about Janet's former dates. We might have split up, except that she also told Janet a lot of things about me, so we compared notes and found out they were all lies.

Now you'd think that would be enough to cure me, but I can't stop thinking of Peg. I figure if she'll lie to keep me from me back herself, except that her wedding is set for July, and she is going through with it. The guy she is marrying makes $1,000 a month, which she was honest enough to tell me was one of the reasons she chose him.

I want to make one last try, but if I ask her if he still cares, and she doesn't then she'll really ruin things between me and Janet, because they dislike each other, and Peg will brag. Should I try, anyway?

If you print this, change it so the girls won't recognize themselves and sign me: — Torch Bearer

Dear T.B.: Some fellows do not know when they're well off! Leave this scheming meanie to her $1,000 a month man, poor guy.

... And let Janet find a fiancé who really loves her! — H.

This column is dedicated to family living, so if you're having kid trouble or just plain trouble, let Helen help YOU.

THE DOCTOR'S MAILBAG

Gnawing Stomach Pains Often Tip Off Peptic Ulcers

BY WAYNE G. BRANDSTADT, M.D. Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

(Second of two related columns)

Q—Within an hour or two after I eat I get gnawing hunger pains. Eating stops them. Is this a sign of an ulcer?

A—Very likely. Typically the ulcer pain can be localized with the tip of one finger just above the navel and doesn't come on until 2 to 3 hours after a full meal. Because there are other possible causes for your pain, you should have an examination of your gastric acidity and stomach X rays.

Q—Our 17-year-old daughter has had a peptic ulcer for about a year. What foods would irritate it? Can ulcer patients have foods that contain fat? Is there a complete cure for this disease?

A—Your daughter should avoid bran, whole wheat bread, fried foods and rough fibrous vegetables and fruits, especially raw. Fat in the form of butter, cream and margarine is easily digested and should be allowed. With proper treatment most ulcers heal in about 3 weeks but the recurrence rate is high unless you can find and remove the underlying cause, which is often nervous tension.

Q—For 10 months I have had a noise like escaping steam in my left ear. I was told that Lipoflavonoid, if taken for 6 to 12 months, would help. What do you think?

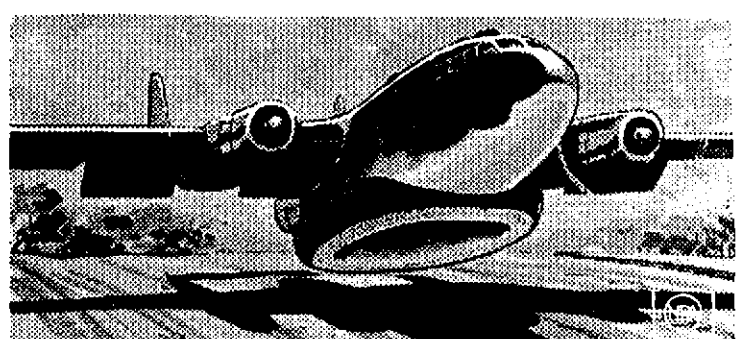

A—Head noises described as hissing, ringing or roaring are a common accompaniment of advancing years. They are caused by hardening of the arteries in the inner ear and they vary in intensity. Lipoflavonoid is a combination of vitamins that helps some but not all victims of this annoying condition.

Q—I was told that I have tinnitus. Is this serious? Is there a cure for it?

A—Tinnitus is the technical name for ringing in the ears. It is not serious. When it is caused by the irreversible changes that occur with age there is no cure but your doctor may be able to give you symptomatic relief. If, on the other hand, it is caused by an allergy, wax pressing on your ear drum, excessive smoking, aspirin, quinine or streptomycin, removing the cause should clear it up.

Q—My 15-year-old daughter dropped dead on the street about a year ago. The cause of death was cardiac granuloma. She was apparently in the best of health at the time. How can this happen? If she had had symptoms, the diagnosis had been made earlier, could she have been cured?

A—This tragic disease is very rare and is rarely discovered before death. Even with earlier discovery I doubt that anything could have been done for your daughter. The cause of these noncancerous tumors of the heart is unknown.

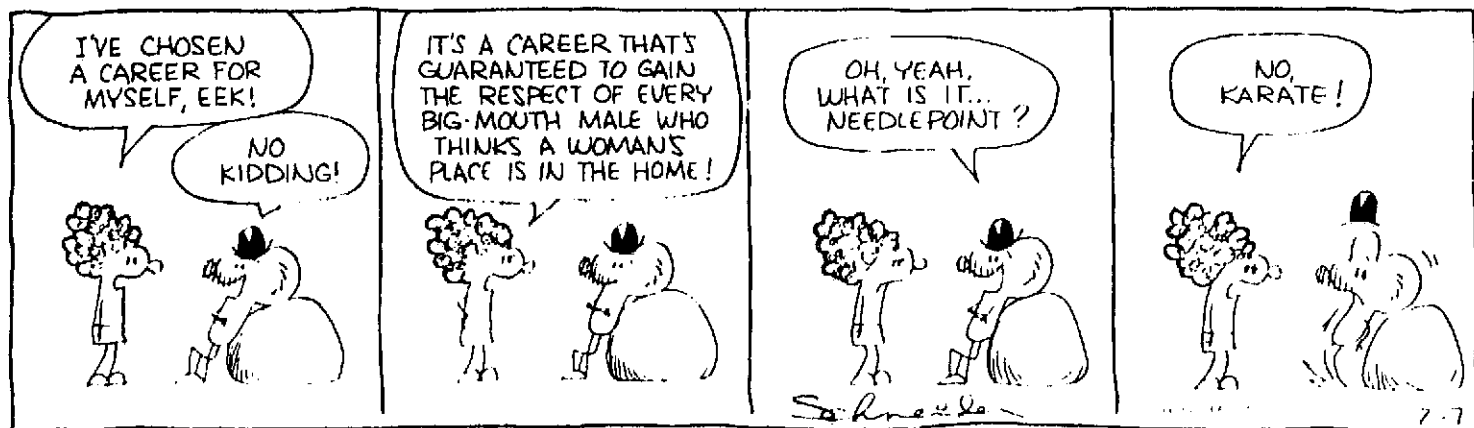

LANDING ON AIR—Engineers are working on a new landing system for airplanes which would eliminate wheels and the necessity for elaborate runways. Bell Aerosystems is developing an inflatable ring which has thousands of tiny ventholes on the underside. There is enough downward air pressure exerted to float the plane several inches above the ground.

First Commandos

The Andrews Raiders were the first commandos of the United States. The 22 raiders from three Ohio regiments commandeered a railroad train on April 12, 1862. Pursued by a Confederate locomotive, they damaged bridges and track for 58 miles before they were captured.

The number of private cars in the United States is more than that of all the other nations in the world combined; over 64 million, or about one for every three Americans. It also means that three out of every four families own an automobile and uncounted millions of other families own more than one car. In India there is one private car for every 1,500 inhabitants.

ruffed and set the contract by cashing his ace of hearts. Why did East have no problems? Wouldn't he have looked awfully silly if West did not have a third trump to ruff the diamond?

But East knew that his partner held a third trump. West had followed to the first spade lead with the three spot and to the second spade lead with the deuce. This play is known as the "trump echo."

Specifically, if a defender holds three small trumps and wants to inform his partner of that fact he plays high-low on the first two trump leads. West had every reason to want to give his partner this information and used the echo with great success.

Powell Raps in 11 Runs for Orioles

By MIKE RATHER
Associated Press Sports Writer
Boog Powell had his fancy hitting clothes on, but the Cinderella guy turned out to be Larry Stahl, who brought the Kansas City A's home just before the clock struck midnight.
Powell, Baltimore's slugging first baseman who has been on a hitting tear since the beginning of May, tied the American League records in a 4-1 driving in 11 runs in the Orioles' two-night doubleheader against the A's Wednesday night.
But the best the Orioles could do was gain a split, winning the opener 110 before Kansas City took the nightcap 9-8 when Stahl slipped into the glass slipper and doubled home the winning run in the 11th inning — just before a midnight curfew would have halted play.
However, neither Stahl's key hit nor the A's sudden role as spoilers — they've won nine of their last 15 against front-running Baltimore, Detroit and Cleveland — could overshadow the one-man show put on by Powell.
The 24-year-old left-handed swinger drove in four runs in the opener with a three-run double and a sacrifice fly, then pushed into high gear in the nightcap and added seven runs batted in with a grand slam homer, a two-run homer and a run-producing double.
That tied the AL record for RBIs in a twinbill, accomplished previously only by Earl Averill of Cleveland in 1930 and Jim Tabor of Boston in 1939. It also lifted Powell's average to .301 and raised his RBI total to 66 — one short of the major league leader, teammate Brooks Robinson.
Elsewhere, California edged Detroit 1-0 in 11 innings, Minnesota nipped Cleveland 4-3, Washington swept the Chicago White Sox 4-3 and 3-2 and Boston took two from the New York Yankees 5-3 and 5-4.
In the National League, San Francisco edged St. Louis 3-2, Pittsburgh belted the Chicago Cubs 10-5, Los Angeles nipped Cincinnati 1-0, the New York Mets defeated Philadelphia 7-5 and Atlanta clubbed Houston 8-1.
Powell's efforts in the first game backed Steve Barber's five-hit pitching, but he couldn't do it alone in the nightcap. The A's trailed 6-2, then moved ahead with a six-run rally in the eighth.
Powell pulled Baltimore back into a tie with a two-run homer with two out in the ninth before the A's finally won it in the 11th when Roger Repoz and Stahl doubled. It was Stahl's fourth RBI of the game.
Angels starter George Brunet allowed only two hits and Boston's Earl Wilson just four through nine innings. California finally broke through against reliever Larry Sherry in the 10th on singles by Tom Satriano and Bob Rodgers around a sacrifice.
Tony Oliva and Bob Allison each drove in two runs for the Twins, Allison connecting for a homer off Sam McDowell in the second inning and Oliva rapping a tie-breaking, two-run double off reliever Dick Padatz in the eighth.
Don Lock hammered a two-run homer in the first inning of the opener for the Senators.

BATTING — Boog Powell, Orioles, tied an American League record with 11 runs batted in in a doubleheader — four with a double and sacrifice fly as the Orioles beat Kansas City 11-0 in first game and seven with a bases-loaded double and a pair of homers in the Orioles' 9-8 nightcap loss.
PITCHING — Claude Osteen, Dodgers, pitched a three-hitter and singled home the only run in a 1-0 victory over Cincinnati.

Famous Ball Player Is Dead at 73

WOODSFIELD, Ohio (AP)—Sad Sam Jones, who shared with Cy Young the record for longevity among major league baseball pitchers of all time is dead.
The 73-year-old Jones was stricken here Wednesday at his home where he had lived since leaving baseball for good after a brief stint as a minor league relief hurler in 1947.
Jones would have been 74 in 20 more days, and also would have marked his golden anniversary with his wife, Edyth, the same day.
Sad Sam entered the major leagues with Cleveland of the American League in 1914 and pitched through the 1935 season, chalking up 22 consecutive years.
Only he and the great Young, of Newcomertown, Ohio, pitched that many years consecutively in the majors. All Jones' pitching was in the American League.
Jones, in addition to Cleveland, pitched for New York, St. Louis, Washington, Chicago and Boston.
He had a lifetime record in the majors of 228-216, including 36 shutouts and a no-hitter on Sept. 4, 1923, defeating the old Philadelphia Athletics 2-0.
Many athletes have used the nickname Sad Sam but Paul Turner of Woodsfield, a long-time friend, said Jones was the original.
"But he wasn't sad. There wasn't anything sad about him... I don't know where he got the nickname," said Turner. The family did not disclose the cause of death.
In addition to the widow, Jones is survived by two sons, Paul, of Erie, Pa., and George, of New York City. Jones became president of the Woodsfield Savings and Loan Co. after returning to his home town 19 years ago.
All Stars to Have Plenty Experience
CINCINNATI (AP) — Most of the pitchers picked for the National League in next week's All-Star Game have had some experience in All-Star competition.
Manager Walt Alston of the Los Angeles Dodgers said Wednesday his choices were Sandy Koufax of the Dodgers, Juan Marichal and Gaylord Perry of San Francisco, Jim Bunning (9-4) has been picked seven times — including twice in the American League — and Koufax has been named to the squad six times.
The contest with the American League All-Stars in St. Louis' new Busch Stadium next Tuesday will be Marichal's fifth All-Star Game. Gibson has been named three times and Veale was first selected last year, but did not see any action.
The eight hurlers have a collective record of 79-31.
Manager Sam Mele of Minnesota, who heads the American League team, announced his selections earlier. They were Gary Bell and Sam McDowell of Cleveland, Denny McLain of Detroit, Steve Barber of Baltimore, Jim Kaat of Minnesota, Mel Stottlemyre of New York, Jim Hunter of Kansas City and Pete Richert of Washington.
All of Mele's selections were starters, while Alston picked two relief experts — McCool (4-4) and Raymond (5-2).
Perry, who is 12-1, has the best record among the starting pitchers. Marichal (13-4) has an All-Star earned run average of 1.13 as the winner in 1962 and 1964. He gave up only one hit in three innings after starting last year's game.
The victory in that game went to Koufax (15-3), who worked only one inning. Gibson (11-8) worked the last two innings of the game and saved the National League's one-run margin.
Veale (10-5), Koufax and McCool are left-handers. The other five hurlers are right-handed.
The eight starting infielders and outfielders for both teams have already been selected by vote of the players, but the two managers still have to name nine more men to their squads.
The 1967 Masters golf tournament has been set for April 6-9.

Famous Grid Players Meet in Atlanta

By RON SPEER
Associated Press Sports Writer
ATLANTA (AP) — Two rich young college football players — Donny Anderson of Texas Tech and Jim Grabowski of Illinois — will battle for the last time Saturday night before they team up in what they hope will be rewarding careers with the Green Bay Packers.
Anderson will play for the West and Grabowski for the East in the Coaches All-American Game, which marks the second time they have duelled.
The two youngsters — each of whom received a bonus reportedly in the neighborhood of $600,000 to sign with the Packers — were on opposite sides last January in the Hula Bowl at Honolulu.
"We won that game by one point," Grabowski said, "although Donny had a better day than I did. I scored a conversion, but he caught a couple of nice passes."
Grabowski and Anderson will team up for the College All-Star Game in Chicago Aug. 5, when the 1965 college standouts meet the Green Bay Packers, champions of the National Football League.
Then the two hard-running backs will report to Green Bay, where they plan to room together.
Both are being counted on heavily in the All-America Game, with Grabowski the East's starting fullback and Anderson playing halfback for the West.
"I enjoy playing against Donny," Grabowski said, "although he's so much faster than me I don't even like to think about it."
Grabowski is a burly 220-pounder who broke Big Ten running marks by gaining 2,878 yards in his career; Anderson, who also weighs 220 on a rangier frame, gained 2,280 yards rushing in three years at Texas Tech, and also caught 105 passes for 1,327 yards and 12 touchdowns.
Both admit they may have trouble cracking the Green Bay line-up.
Grabowski will be understudying the Packers' great fullback, Jimmy Taylor, and Anderson will be playing behind halfback Paul Horn.

Pro Grid Teams May Up Roster

DETROIT (AP) — A move to increase the playing roster from 38 to 40 has been the only major decision reached by the American Football League owners in their summer meeting.
A morning session was scheduled today but little was expected to be accomplished, outside of continued discussion on the recent merger with the National Football League.
"We had to increase the number of players on each team to keep in line with what's done in the NFL," Boston Patriots owner Bill Sullivan explained. "We don't like the thought of meeting them in a championship game with fewer players."
Sullivan indicated that the AFL owners are prepared to present strong cases for their side in various differences between the two leagues.
The two-point conversion option and making the scoreboard clock official were two rules mentioned.
"I don't know why the NFL doesn't go with the two point option," Sullivan said. "We think it makes for a more interesting game."
Besides the decision to increase the rosters, the AFL owners also indicated a learning toward expansion in 1968 and a warm-weather city or cities as the site of the title game with the NFL.
Cities mentioned in the expansion discussion were Anaheim, Calif., Cincinnati, New Orleans and Seattle.
Commissioner Al Davis explained that under peculiar wording in the AFL-NFL merger agreement the AFL could name a city but the NFL would expand first.
"We'll decide what city to pick as soon as we settle it in our minds. We intend to name the city and protect the territory until we expand in 1968," Davis said.

Nicklaus Is Favorite in British Open

By RONALD THOMSON
MURFIELD, Scotland (AP)—If the big hitters of golf are finding it hard to take Muirfield in the British Open championship, the reason may be that Muirfield decided to take them in advance.
That belief was voiced today by Byron Nelson, the Texan who won virtually everything in sight from 1939 to 1943 and still holds the record of sweeping 11 straight tournaments.
Nelson, a spectator on these Scottish links now that illness prevents him from swinging a club, said:
"This course has been made impossible for the real long hitters. With all that massive rough crowding in on the narrow fairways, the penalties for being off target are too severe."
It was precisely this consideration that made such stars as Jack Nicklaus, Arnold Palmer, Doug Sanders, and Tony Lama concentrate on power irons instead of driving off the tees in Wednesday's first round.
Nelson, non-playing captain of the American Ryder Cup team which beat the British last year at Birkdale, England, said:
"Accuracy with the first shot must pay off here at Muirfield. Anything else is trouble."
Thinking the same way, Nicklaus used plenty of long irons to shoot a first-round one-under-par 70 over the 6,887-yard links beside the Firth of Forth.
With 54 holes to go he shares the lead with British Ryder Cupper Jimmy Hitchcock, and the betting makes the Columbus, Ohio, master a solid favorite to keep ahead.
Lema, of San Leandro, Calif., and Sanders, of Ojai, Calif., were one shot behind with par 71s along with South Africa's Harold Henning and Scotland's amateur champion, Ronnie Shade.
Among seven tied at 72 were Gary Player, the South African star who won the Open here at Muirfield seven years ago, and Kel Nagle of Australia.
Arnold Palmer, of Latrobe, Pa., still a hot tip to win the British title for the third time, lay in wait at 73 along with 15 others including defending champion Peter Thomson of Australia, Julius Boros of Mid Pines, N.C., Dick Sikes of Springdale, Ark., and Dave Marr of Litchfield Park, Ariz.

Sanders ... Color Him Everything

By MURRAY OLDERMAN
Sports Editor
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

NEW YORK—(NEA)—The British gentleman—"a tweedy type"—kept ogling Doug Sanders' green shoes and insisting he must have them. They were just the right size—9 1/2-C.
"I'm sorry, old chap," drawled Doug. "You can't have 'em."
"I'll give you 100 pounds for them." That's $240 American folding money.
"But my whole outfit would be ruined," Doug shook his head and went back to playing golf, with green turtleneck shirt, green sweater and green slacks to match. When the tournament, the British Open, was over, Sanders went looking for the tweedy chap.
"I was going to give him the shoes for nothing," mused Doug, "but I couldn't find him."
Sanders has left a trail of "old" golf shoes all around the world, in pastel shades ranging from pink to purple.

Olderman

Every three months a manufacturer in Brockton, Mass., sends Sanders 20 pairs of golf shoes, with color swatches to match. Doug then sends the samples to his shirt manufacturer who passes them on to his sweater manufacturer who ships them on to his slacks manufacturer.
"Sometimes," said Doug, "the colors are hard to match. I'm lucky if I come out of it with 10 different outfits."
So one day he shows up on the course all in canary yellow, shoulders to shoes, and the next day in cerise, then maybe in mauve. And along the tour he discards his old outfits, giving them to the clubhouse boys or any golf nut who approximates his size.
I mean, where do you find shoe polish in such hues as ultramarine blue, viridian or fuchsia?
"I use the greasy kid stuff on them," grinned Doug. But when they get scuffed, he goes looking for another size 9 1/2-C. That way he keeps his closets roomy. He goes through 50 outfits a year.
Doug's affinity for multicolored ensembles has become his identification tag. He has even tried to spread it to his buddies. He has an exhibition match scheduled for Pensacola, Fla., in which one of his playing partners will be Chuck Connor, the old first baseman turned movie star. Doug was going to surprise him with a pair of exotic shoes—in fact, leathers to match the rainbow for the whole foursome.
"Had a devil of a time, though, with Connor," he grimaced. "You know, all of these have to be made special. And he wears a 14-C."
Sanders would have color on a course even if he wore only Gary Player blacks. ("I told Gary the only reason he wears black," grinned Doug, "is because it saves him cleaning bills.")
With his inimitable short backswing, his crackling personality and Georgia twang, Doug's a natural gallery draw. And this year he has complemented the picture by being the leading money-maker on the PGA tour while winning three tournaments.
All that has kept him from creeping into the Arnie Palmer-Jack Nicklaus class is his failure to win the really big major tournament—like, for instance, the U.S. Open, which comes up June 16 at the Olympic Club in San Francisco.
"I'm really trying very hard," he said. "This has been my goal this year. I've finished second in the Open, second in the PGA. And this year I was two shots behind in the Masters and had a good chance until I put the ball in the water at the 16th hole the third day and made a double bogey."
At that moment, Doug didn't especially want the crimson of his face to match his shoes.

THEY'LL START—When the National and American League All-Stars face each other Tuesday, July 12, in St. Louis, the following players will start at the infield positions. For the National League, top row, left to right, Willie McCovey of San Francisco will be at first with teammate Jim Ray Hart at third. Cincinnati's Leo Cardenas will be at short with Jim Lefebvre of Los Angeles at second. The American League, bottom row, left to right, will have Baltimore's Brooks Robinson at third with George Scott of Boston's rookie sensation, at first. Bobby Knoop of California will be at second with Detroit's Dick McAuliffe at short. Outfielders and batterymen for the baseball classic will be named later.

Best Pitch Is Honesty

BALTIMORE—(NEA)—At a time when creeping conformity is threatening baseball, along comes Eddie Watt, destroying the old cliches and stereotypes with a simple weapon called honesty.
Watt is a right-handed relief pitcher with the Baltimore Orioles and one of the surprise rookies of the season.
"I knew I wasn't going to make the club," Watt says as an introduction.
"What?" an astonished listener asked.
"That's right," he said, "I went to spring training without any pressure on me. I knew I wasn't going to make it. I even told my landlady in Rochester to expect me back this year."
"I wasn't kidding myself. I'm not one of those guys who starts reading about himself in the papers and says, 'Yeah, I'll win 20. All you need is confidence.'"
"Well, I've got as much confidence as anyone, but you've got to be realistic in baseball. I spent four years in the minors and I have a college degree, so I think I know what's going on."
"The only reason I was in spring training was because the team had me on the 40-man roster."
"I started the season at Elmira last year and then the Orioles wanted me to go to Rochester. Well, I had used all my minor league options up and the only way I could get more was if the Orioles bought my contract."
"So they did and I went up to Rochester. Now I was on the Orioles' 40-man roster. That meant I would be going to spring training with them."
All winter, Eddie read in the papers about the "great young pitchers" the Orioles would be taking to camp to replace Milt Pappas, who went to Cincinnati in the Frank Robinson trade.
"I wasn't even mentioned," Watt said. "So I went to camp, got in shape, pitched when I was told and didn't worry about a thing. I knew I was going to Rochester."
"I knew most of the spots on the pitching staff had been taken and just a few were open. By the end of training, I thought I might be able to get one because one guy had a sore arm and a few others had pitched themselves out of a job. Meanwhile, I had been doing a steady job."
"The day before we were going north, Hank (Bauer) came up to me, the first time I even had any conversation with him, and said, 'You're not worried about anything, are you?'"
"I looked at him and said, 'Hell, no. What do I have to be worried about?' Then he told me he was taking me north. He said he wanted me to work out of the bullpen and I said fine, I didn't care where I worked."
"But I didn't think I could pitch in relief. I was a starter all through the minors and averaged eight innings per start in four years."
"Besides, I had bursitis in my elbow and a doctor once told me it would be a lot harder for me to relieve than start because my arm wouldn't have the proper time to rest. He said I would never be able to pitch without pain."
"That was a few years ago. Since then I've changed my delivery, which has helped my arm and allowed me to throw my breaking pitches without too many problems."
Eddie Watt has few problems these days. He's winning and so are the Orioles.
Even his landlady in Rochester is doing fine.
"Oh," Eddie said, "she found somebody else to take my place up there."

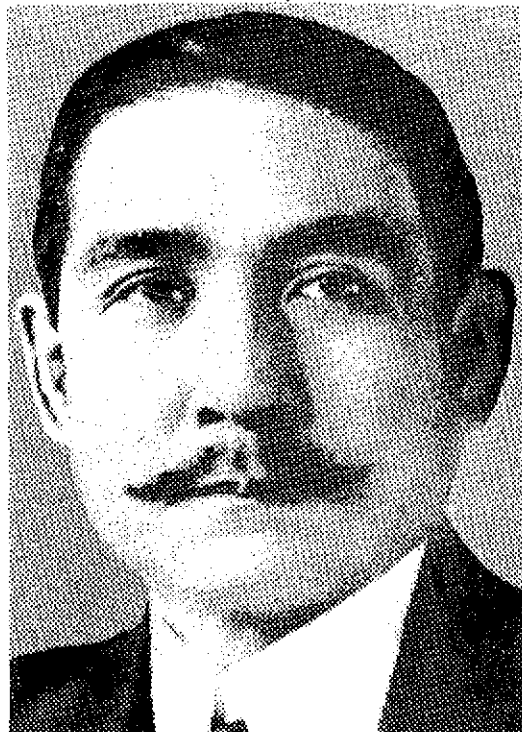

MEMENTO FOR THE FUTURE

BALTIMORE AP — A stainless steel capsule to be dug up 100 years from now was buried here at Mt. Olivet Cemetery as part of the bicentennial observance of American Methodism. The capsule contains Bibles, denominational books, films and documents, current postage stamps and coins and tape-recorded messages from present Methodist bishops to the Methodists of 2066.

CHIANG KAI-SHEK

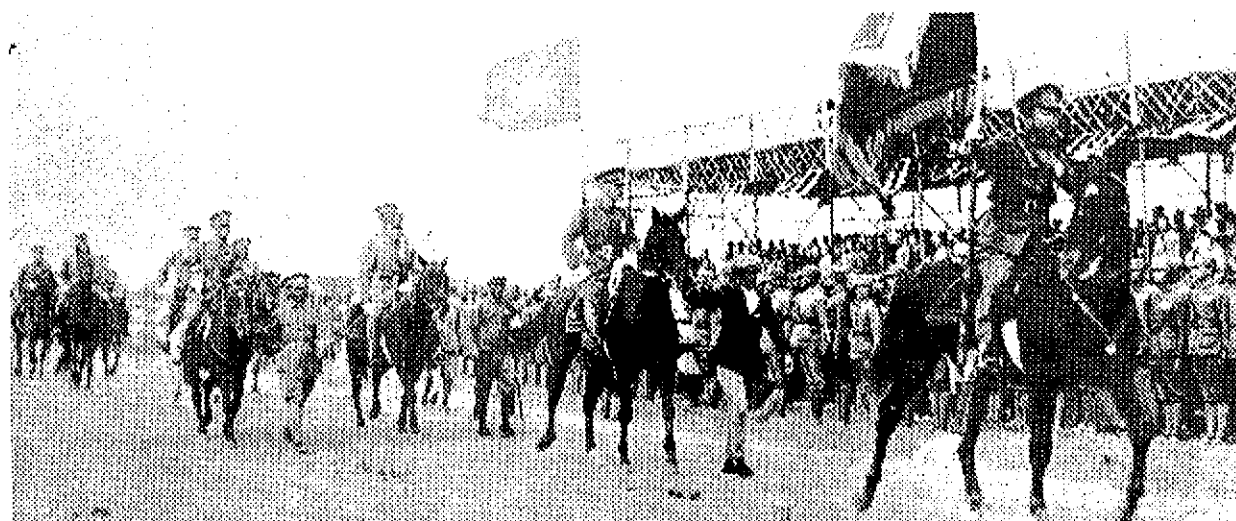

From the twilight of the crumbling Manchu empire to the dawn of the militant People's Republic, this soldier son of a village elder spanned the chaotic death of an old and the agonizing birth of a new era in the most venerable of civilizations. His rise to power was rapid. His hold on it was long, his use often ruthless in the struggle to preserve China against enemies at home and abroad and bring it intact into the twentieth century. And if in the end he was to triumph in world war only to lose all in the civil war, he yet remains as much as any man the maker of the new China.

The military career began early as a student at China's Poating Military Academy and the Tokyo Military Academy. In Japan the young Chiang met Dr. Sun Yat-sen, father of the Chinese Revolution and founder of the Republic. He was to be Sun's strong right arm for 20 years and then his heir.

Marriage to American-educated Soong Mei-ling, Sun's sister-in-law, allied Chiang with China's most powerful family. His second wife, she was to be the link connecting him with the western world.

Disintegration faced the Republic with Sun's death. Taking command of Sun's Kuomintang party and the ragtag Nationalist army, Chiang set out from Canton on the Northern Expedition which made him effective master of most of China by 1928. Although aided by Soviet advisers, he followed his triumph with a bloody purge, curbing yet failing to eliminate China's home-grown Communists.

Chiang's power was dominant but never complete. In a falling out with Marshal Chang Hsueh-liang, left, he was kidnapped and imprisoned. Mme. Chiang negotiated his release with an assist from the Communists on condition he cease fighting them and resist Japan.

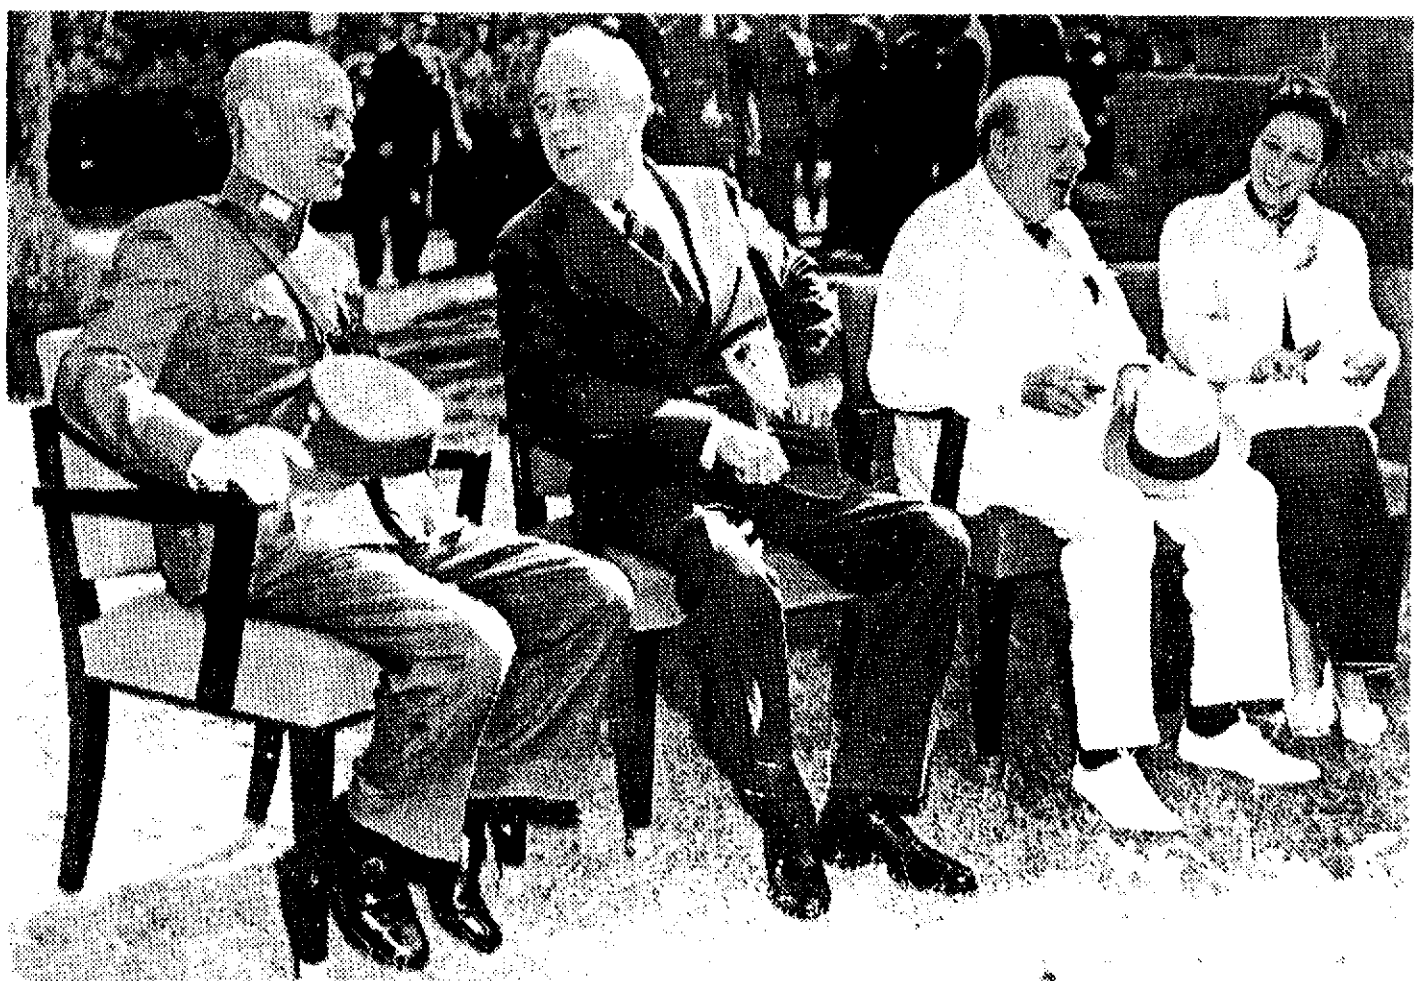

The world war over, China's civil war flared anew. Washington sent Gen. George C. Marshall in a desperate effort to bring Chiang and the Communists together. The mission failed. So did Mme. Chiang's to Washington to plead for more American aid as the Reds gained ground.

Chiang retired briefly to his native village as the Nationalists sought to stave off collapse with a change of leadership. But he was soon back to lead the losing battle. Swept off the mainland, he took refuge with the remnant of his armies on Formosa.

Wracked by decades of revolution and civil war, China's greatest trial was yet to come. Imperial Japan was on the march. Trouble began in 1931 when Manchuria was seized, but Chiang avoided open conflict until a clash at Peking's Marco Polo bridge ignited an eight-year war. China suffered horribly but resisted.

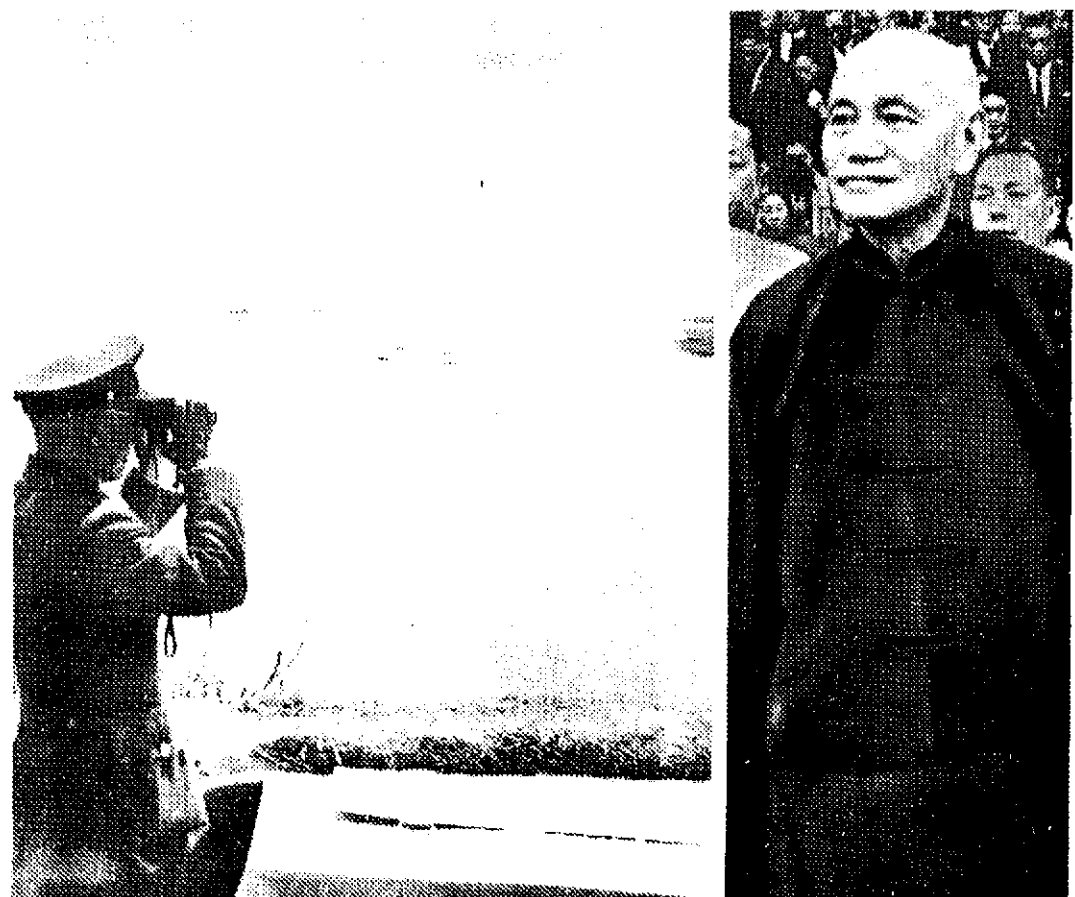

The Sino-Japanese war merged into world war. The Chiangs met President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill in Cairo at a summit conference binding China's fate to the Allied cause. But there was an ominous absence. Russia's Stalin—at edgy peace with Japan and with an eye to the future—remained aloof.

THE YEARS

- 1887—Born October 31 at Fenghua, Chekiang province.
- 1906—Enters Poating Military Academy.
- 1907—Enters Tokyo Military Academy. Japanese customs of simple living, hard work become his personal philosophy. Meets Sun Yat-sen.
- 1911—Returns to China at outbreak of revolution. Makes fortune in brief Shanghai business career before becoming Sun's military aide.
- 1923—Sent to Moscow to study, returns to urge purge of Communists from revolutionary movement.
- 1925—Sun dies.
- 1926—Launches Northern Expedition.
- 1927—Marries Soong Mei-ling, accepts her Christian faith.
- 1928—Brings most of China under control. Communists purged.
- 1931—Japan occupies Manchuria; Shanghai clashes.
- 1936—Held captive by Marshal Chang Hsueh-liang.
- 1937—Marco Polo bridge clash sparks war with Japan.
- 1941—United States enters war.
- 1943—Cairo summit conference.
- 1945—Japan defeated.
- 1946—Nationalist-Communist civil war flares as American mediation effort fails. Washington denounces Chiang, ends aid.
- 1949—Communists conquer mainland; Nationalists flee to Formosa.
- 1958—Quemoy-Matsu crisis.

A change of administration in Washington brought a change in the American attitude and frequent visits from Secretary of State Dulles, architect of a new common front against the belligerent Communist regime on the mainland.

The new American alliance fell short of Chiang's highest hopes. It meant security behind U.S. seapower in the Formosa Strait, but not American aid for a return to a mainland visible—so near and yet so far—from the Nationalist fortress islands of Quemoy and Matsu. Years of status quo rolled by for the aging Chiang, once the revolutionary soldier and world war leader, now the elder in exile.

The Good, New Days

By DICK KLEINER
Hollywood Correspondent
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

HOLLYWOOD — (NEA) — The little white-haired lady seemed chipper. She exchanged banter with the other cast members and the crew and she laughed heartily.

The little white-haired lady was Barbara Stanwyck, who has run the Hollywood gamut in her many years as a movie queen. Once she was a top glamour gal. Today, she is playing the mother of four grown children on ABC's sagebrush soap opera, The Big Valley.

She has matured gracefully and, what is more surprising, quite openly. With a bit of retouching here and there, she could still play a youthful lead, but she'd rather not.

"I'd like to do a good movie," she says, "but good parts for women my age don't come along very often."

Seldom do you hear a glamor queen—even one who has ceased reigning—speak of "women my age." But Barbara Stanwyck has always been unusual.

She is one of the very few stars of her generation who gracefully made the transition to television. A few others did it, but the majority of them couldn't quite manage it.

"I've never had to compromise on quality," she says. "Of course, on television time is our enemy. Everything has to be done so very fast."

"But I've learned that we used to waste a great deal of time in movies. In television, you just have to be ready. That's all I think television performances are just as good—if the actor realizes he must be ready always and know his lines. I feel the quality of my performance is just as good on television as it was in the movies."

Barbara Stanwyck doesn't mope about the set, sneering at television and continually talking about the good old days. She enjoys her work and it shows.

"We have a good relationship on this show," she says. "I could think of nothing worse than being locked into a family show with people you don't like. I've known Richard (Long) and Peter (Breck) a long time. I didn't know Linda (Evans) and Lee (Majors) before, but they're very nice, too."

"We have discussions—well, they're really heated arguments—about story points, but we always wind up friends."

It seems obvious that Barbara Stanwyck sets the tone for The Big Valley cast, just as the character she plays—

Mrs. Barkley—dominates the others.

"I get so tired," she says, "of hearing people say that Mrs. Barkley is really Mrs. Ben Cartwright. It would be just as fair to say that Lorne Greene is Major Tom Barkley."

Simple Dress Proves Flattering

by Mary Brooks Picken
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

You probably cannot find a simpler, easier dress to make than the one we show.

The gentle shaping through the bodice is flattering. The soft inverted pleats at the neckline add softness. The true bias trim dresses up the dress, and makes it appropriate for white, black or colored accessories.

Use a bonded sheer wool jersey, a silk linen or sturdy crepe. Any one of the quality blends are ideal in fabric for this silhouette.

Allow in cutting for a 2 3/4-inch finished hem. Side seams of the skirt may be left open the depth of the hem if desired.

If the fabric is 54 inches wide or wider, you can cut the dress from one length. This is especially easy if you are size 16 or under.

The pattern also includes a smart little jacket should you wish to make a complete costume.

The neckline is large enough so that no opening is necessary. A dress zipper at the left side helps give a smaller looking waistline.

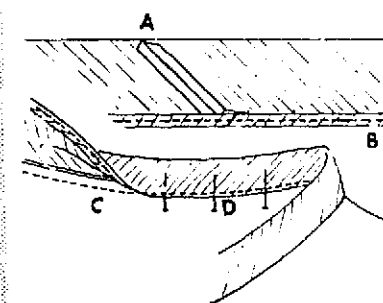

Don't think putting the true bias trim in place is difficult. It isn't at all, if you follow instructions.

Turn one edge to the wrong side 3/4-inch, stitch it as in B. Press the bias, but do not stretch it.

Place the raw edge C to the right side of your dress. Pin it all the way around. Ease the bias on. Avoid stretching the neckline.

When the bias has been stitched to place and all pins removed, turn the bias over to the wrong side of your dress. Pin it as shown in D, slip stitch it to place.

Join the ends of the bias on left shoulder making the joining on a true bias as in A.

In the final pressing, press so the bias stands up. Finish armholes the same way as you did the neckline.

Curry Lamb, Serve Easily On Noodles

What's a hot entree that's especially delicious in tropical countries? The answer is curry. Lamb and curry powder are flavor compatibles. Both go well with the noodles which are designated in the recipe.

Often lamb breast is cut into pieces or riblets to make curry, but it's easier to use boneless cubes of the meat for this entree, advises Reba Staggs, meat expert.

- Lamb Curry With Noodles
- 2 pounds boneless lamb, cut in 1-inch cubes
 - 2 tablespoons lard or drippings
 - 1/2 cup chopped onion
 - 1/4 cup flour
 - 2 cups water
 - 1 1/2 teaspoons salt
 - 1 teaspoon curry powder
 - 1 cup chopped apple
 - 1/4 cup chopped celery
 - 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
 - 1 tablespoon salt
 - 2 quarts boiling water
 - 1 package (8 ounces) broad noodles

Brown lamb in lard or drippings. Pour off drippings. Add onion and cook 5 minutes. Add flour, stirring until smooth. Gradually add 2 cups water. Cook, stirring constantly, until thickened. Add salt, curry powder, apple, celery and Worcestershire sauce. Cover tightly and cook slowly 1 1/2 to 2 hours. Cook noodles according to package directions. Drain thoroughly and rinse with hot water. Serve curried lamb over noodles. 6 servings.

THE HISTORY OF WALL DECORATIONS

Unlike all the king's horses and all the king's men who couldn't put Humpty together again, historians have pieced together a fascinating account of man's efforts to decorate his walls.

Ten thousand years ago the walls of most homes were done in blue, brown and red. And there is reason to believe that cave drawings, as a form of communication, preceded the use of verbal sentences.

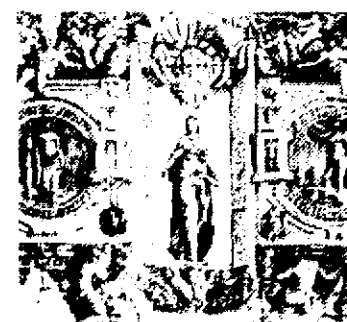

The ancient Egyptians painted large wall areas with colors extracted from plants growing on the banks of the Nile. The Romans installed colorful frescoed panels on the walls of their homes and public buildings, some of these can still be seen in the ruins of ancient Pompeii.

One of the world's most famous paintings, Leonardo da Vinci's "The Last Supper," had as its "canvas" a wall at Santa Maria delle Grazie in Milan.

As a substitute for the costly tapestries which had been a favorite wall decoration in wealthy homes, Europeans in the 16th and 17th centuries began using wallpaper.

Although plywood panelled doors made their appearance in 1890, it wasn't until the development of the synthetic resin adhesives in the 1920's and '30's that plywood began to find wide-spread use as wall panelling.

Today, to accentuate the beauty of any room or building, many architects and interior designers use wall panelings of Canadian yellow birch plywood—made from one of the hardest of hardwoods.

French wall decoration 16th Cent.

Professional and amateur builders like Canadian Birch because it is so "workable." Housewives prefer it, too, because it's so easy to clean and needs little care. What's more, the rich golden tones of Canadian Birch are subtle but elegant grain blend with any decor and add luxury to any home.

Children Enjoy Trip

By Aileen Snoddy, Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

NEW YORK—(NEA)—Many youngsters who relish the idea of rocketing to the moon may be extremely poor earth travelers. The reason rests with their early experiences when on the road with the family. It doesn't take a $25-an-hour psychoanalyst to explain this phenomenon.

A baby absorbs the attitudes around him and an infant who travels with parents who are relatively calm and well-organized is soon a seasoned traveler. Trips that become family battling grounds cause more than one upset stomach.

Parents are not Pollyannas when they team up to overcome pleasant situations when traveling with children.

Before a trip begins, set ground rules on allowances for the youngsters. A good lecture on behavior in restaurants is also an aid to group control when traveling.

Age is a factor and a four-month-old baby proves a gurgling loss in the orders department. Of the approximately 4 million babies born each year in the United States almost all take some trips with parents before they are 3 years old. The mother who packs a separate kit for baby, takes along baby food or formula and tells the motel or hotel there will be a baby to cater to is doing herself a favor, too.

Babies are irritated by new routine. The squalling of tots in railroad, airline or bus terminals lets everyone know when they are upset by this. Try, as much as possible, to maintain his routine. A tote bag used as baby's traveling case saves scrambling for necessities.

And don't forget baby's cuddly toys. On a long car ride, divert a youngster with a hand puppet, one that is washable.

But baby isn't the only passenger needing a break from mile upon mile of uneventful thruways.

On a planned motor trip, excursions to small communities are fun. But there had better be something on the side of the road for youngsters older than four to see or do. It is the unusual child who is content to wander through innumerable antique shops with his parents.

Take along a few games for day or overnight stops. Mary Hilt, game editor for a publishing company (Whitman), suggests a checker set, magic slate, a favorite doll or stuffed toy, soldiers and cars.

When traveling with children, the father who insists on driving through 10 or more hours will find he has a rebellious tribe on his hands upon arrival. A pleasant stop for lunch and a morning and afternoon break relieve travel boredom.

Many families on vacation trips to other states like to take potluck on hotels, motels or camp sites. However, with the increase in family travel, it is easier on the nerves to phone ahead for reservations.

Maps prove great fun when the children help chart the trip. Later, the youngsters can mount the maps, post cards and other trip mementos and be ready for their annual "show and tell" when school resumes.

Citrus Is Big With Little Leaguers

Treat the team after practice to refreshing orange juice and Orange Peanut Refrigerator Cookies. Kids need the energy pickup of vitamin C-rich orange juice, and they'll love these chewy cookies.

Prepare the juice with fresh-frozen Florida orange juice concentrate—now sweeter, richer and more flavorful than ever before. This pure, natural product is better for them than a synthetic, high-sugar fruit drink.

The orange concentrate-flavored cookie rolls will keep in your refrigerator or freezing compartment for several weeks. Just slice and bake as you need 'em!

Orange Peanut Refrigerator Cookies
2 cups all-purpose flour
1/4 teaspoon baking soda
1/4 teaspoon salt
1 cup butter or margarine
1/2 cup brown sugar
1/2 cup granulated sugar
1 egg, well beaten
3 tablespoons frozen Florida orange juice concentrate, thawed, undiluted
1 tablespoon Florida orange rind
1/2 cup chopped peanuts

Sift flour, baking soda and salt together. Combine butter and sugars; beat well. Add egg and beat again until light and fluffy. Stir in orange juice concentrate and orange rind; add dry ingredients and blend well. Stir in chopped peanuts. Chill dough. Shape into 2 rolls (2 inches in diameter); wrap in wax paper. Refrigerate several hours or overnight. Cut rolls into 1/2-inch slices. Place on ungreased cookie sheet. Bake in 400 F. oven 10-12 minutes or until done. YIELD: About 4 dozen.

Seedless Grapes

by Gaynor Maddox
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Those sweet, golden green Thompson seedless grapes beginning to be plentiful now are used for wine making, for raisins and for the fruit bowl.

The Thompson seedless vines which are to bear table grapes receive special treatment. One of the oldest tricks in the grape industry is girdling the vine. At a certain critical time, after the berries have formed, vintners peel away a very thin, narrow ring of bark from all around the lower part of the grapevine. This keeps the sweet sap—the carbohydrate—from returning to the roots for storage. Since it has to go somewhere, it accumulates in the grape berries.

Have you ever used these seedless grapes with meat or fish? If not, try it. You'll be happily surprised.

BAKED SMOKED TONGUE WITH FRESH SEEDLESS GRAPES (Serves 6 to 8)

3 1/2 to 4 lbs. smoked beef tongue
Water to cover
3 tablespoons butter
1 cup coarsely chopped onion
1/2 cup coarsely chopped green pepper
3 cups fresh tomatoes, peeled and quartered
2 cups Thompson seedless grapes
1 tablespoon brown sugar
1 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup ripe, pitted olives, drained and sliced

In a large kettle, cover tongue with water. Simmer, covered, about 3 hours or until fork-tender. Place tongue in pan of cold water for 1 minute. Remove. With tip of sharp knife, slit skin from root end to tip of the tongue. Peel off skin carefully, removing the root. In hot butter in skillet, saute onion until golden. Stir in green pepper. Cook about 5 minutes. Add tomatoes, grapes, brown sugar and salt. Cook mixture gently about 10 minutes. Add olives. Place tongue in oblong baking pan and pour on sauce. Bake in a preheated, moderate oven (350 degrees) 45 minutes. Baste meat occasionally with sauce.

Smithsonian Preserves Camera History

The art and science of photography have had more impact on our lives than any other visual medium, permeating every aspect of our culture. Photography moves, persuades, entertains, and informs. It touches lives in all countries and men of all persuasions.

The job of documenting the past and present of this most influential of art forms is being undertaken by the Smithsonian Institution. Collecting literally thousands of photographic tools and materials, the Smithsonian's Section of Photography is now putting together a display covering the highlights of all phases of the photographic arts and sciences. It will be on view sometime in 1967 in the new Smithsonian Museum of History and Technology.

One of our country's oldest photographic companies, Graflex, Inc., recently added to the Smithsonian's collection by presenting fifteen cameras dating from 1905 to 1965 to the Curator of Photo-sonian collection for years. Camera models and photographic prints representing the history of technical processes and aesthetics in photography are being gathered. They include professional cameras of every type and the more familiar Kodak Brownie along with many other amateur cameras. In addition to its documentation, the Smithsonian is also carrying out research projects which will add to the knowledge and usefulness of photography for the future. Along with the George Eastman House in Rochester, New York, the Smithsonian Section of Photography probably gives America the most complete and comprehensive history of photography in the world, a worthwhile enterprise by one of America's most respected institutions.

Look Pretty While Waiting

by Alicia Hart
Beauty Editor
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

NEW YORK—(NEA)—The woman who is pregnant during the hot summer months looks forward to two things—the birth of her child and a cool autumn.

Faced with the inevitable, though, the mother-to-be can enjoy summer. It takes just a little more effort but grooming tricks used daily make life more comfortable and boost morale.

Chances are you are part of the group which keeps busy on summer weekends boating, swimming, fishing or entertaining many friends or family in cookouts. Normally there is no reason to stay at home and brood about all the fun friends are having. Consult your doctor and follow the gang, but do things in moderation.

Of course, the bikini and new cutout bathing suits and sportsclothes aren't for you but there are many bright-colored beach shifts and bathing suits that probably do more for your growing figure than the skimpy outfits do for your pudgy friends.

To beat the heat and humidity, try special cooling bath powders and bath oils in aerosols to top off a soothing bath.

During a summer pregnancy you will find a little make-up goes a long way. Select a good moisturizing cream to use as foundation, a light, cheery lipstick and avoid too heavy a hand with the mascara. When feeling a bit draggy during the day, splash your face with cold water and relax for 10 minutes to half-an-hour with herbal pads or cotton balls saturated with witch hazel over your eyes. When on outings be prepared for quick make-up repairs with the little packages of hand cleaners, cotton swabs to check eye make-up smudges and treat any bites or scratches.

During hot summer months hair is always a problem. Consult your favorite stylist at the beauty salon about an easy-to-maintain hairdo. One that is blunt-cut provides more body for easier setting after frequent shampoos. A quick set on rollers and a brush-out does wonders for your appearance and again boosts your morale during the waiting period.

In between settings, back-brush droopy areas slightly, lift the crown gently with the end of a rat-tailed comb and softly brush the top layer of hair over the area. Top this with a little bow.

Extra effort in grooming keeps up spirits of a mother-to-be during summer days. Cotton swab helps whisk away make-up from hairline and "dusts" the outer ear of sand or road dirt.

Overall how you look depends upon how you feel, so don't overdo keeping up with the nonpregnant Jones gals. Rest or nap during the day but don't pamper yourself too much unless it is doctor's orders. The woman who slouches around the house all day tends to get sloppy — mentally and physically.

itself out. A brass screw at the end of the faucet stem holds the washer. Remove the screw, take off the old washer and replace with another of the same size and shape.

On older faucets, the faucet seat (the part against which the washer rests) may be worn. For a small additional expense you can buy a seat-dressing tool which will smooth this. Reassemble in reverse order, tightening the nut just enough so that there is no leaking around the faucet stem. If there is leakage you will have to remove this nut again and replace the packing washer found under it. Loose packing material, a coated stringlike substance can be used.

Clogged drains occur in the kitchen sink because soap curds mixed with dirt cling to the sides of the drain pipe until it is clogged. In bathroom sinks it is generally a mixture of soap and hair.

There are mixed feelings about chemical cleaners. They must be used carefully to avoid injury to skin and they cannot remain in the drain too long or they may corrode the metal. Periodic use of boiling water will help keep drains open. Should they clog, try the rubber plunger first. The edges must be placed firmly and evenly to the area around the drain and there should be water in the sink. Work up and down a few times to create pressure and force the obstruction through the trap. If this fails, run the drain auger into the pipe. Turn the crank handle until the obstruction is cleared.

Remove Plug

Some drain traps are provided with a cleanout plug. Remove this and run a wire into it to break through the blockage. Otherwise, remove the entire trap and clean out before replacing. The two trap fittings can be removed with a smooth-jaw wrench. It's a good idea to replace the rubber gaskets in these fittings when replacing the trap.

(The trap is the S-shape in the drain pipe. It retains water, preventing the entrance of sewer gas.)

The toilet that continues to run after it is flushed can be the most nerve wracking plumbing trouble of all. Check the metal float in the toilet tank. It may be corroded and waterlogged. If so, replace it. If it is not, then bend the rod that holds it.

Bend it down so that it turns off the intake valve more quickly.

Sometimes the water continues to run because it is running right out of the tank and into the toilet bowl. Replace the rubber ball that fits into the outlet. The wire that holds it may be bent. Straighten it or replace.

The valve itself has a washer. This may be worn. One or more levers or thumb screws at the top of the mechanism must be removed which will expose the washer. Replacing will generally cure the trouble. Again, shut off the main water supply before starting work.

Carnival Time Offers Theme For Cookies

Have you ever wandered around a carnival, looking at the sights, munching peanuts? It's readily understandable how these cookies were inspired.

The flavors of lard and brown sugar give an especially tempting cookie, points out home economist, Reba Staggs. Like frosting on the cake are the Spanish peanuts which give a delightful crunchiness to the cookies.

Carnival Cookies
1 cup lard
1 1/2 cups brown sugar
3 cups sifted enriched flour
1/2 teaspoon baking soda
1/2 teaspoon salt
2 eggs
2 teaspoons vanilla
2 cups Spanish peanuts
Sugar

Cream lard and brown sugar. Sift together flour, soda and salt. Add eggs, vanilla and sifted ingredients to creamed mixture. Stir in peanuts. Shape into balls about the size of a walnut. Place about 2 inches apart on ungreased cookie sheet. Flatten with a water glass wrapped in a damp towel. Sprinkle with granulated sugar. Bake in a moderate oven (350° F.) 12 to 15 minutes. Yield: 5 1/2 dozen.

The Little Things In Life Can Really Be Annoying

BY MR. FIX
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

It's the little things in life that are annoying — little things such as a dripping faucet, a running toilet or a clogged drain. Nothing disastrous about any of them; just things that occur in any home.

Most of the time clearing up any of these problems will not require the services of a plumber. If you lack skill or knowledge leave the major jobs to the professional. These lesser matters can be cleared up by most any homeowner.

If this is the first time around for you there will be a small outlay of money for tools. Some or all of these you may already have. The minimum you will need are screwdriver, a smooth-jaw adjustable wrench, a plunger (plumber's friend) and a spring auger for cleaning out clogged drains. As you get more skilled and are able to tackle more complicated jobs you will want more sophisticated equipment.

Tempting Barbecued Chicken Legs

by Gaynor Maddox
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Chicken legs barbecued outdoors with a sauce that is not too nippy, is a novel idea for a small fry birthday party. For the parents and friends, a more assertive sauce is in order. Here are two variations on the chicken leg theme to keep everybody happy.

BARBECUED CHICKEN LEGS FOR SMALL FRY

- (Serves 6)
12 broiler-fryer chicken legs
1 can (8 ounces) tomato sauce
1 tablespoon vinegar
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce

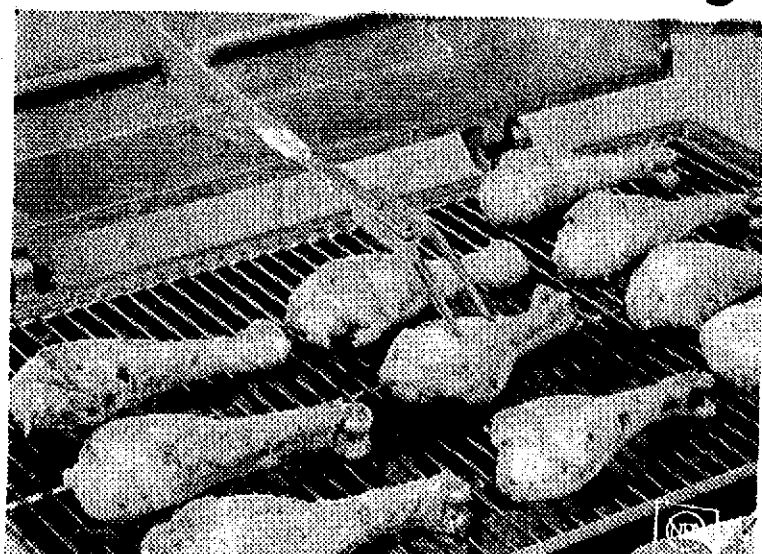

- 1 teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons salad oil

Place chicken legs on grid grill. Combine remaining ingredients. Brush part of the sauce on the chicken legs. Cook until tender, about 45 minutes, turning and brushing occasionally with sauce.

CRANBERRY BARBECUED CHICKEN FOR BIG FRY

- (Serves 4)
2 broiler-fryer chickens, halved or quartered
2 teaspoons monosodium glutamate
1 can (1 pound) jellied cranberry sauce
3 tablespoons salad oil
¼ cup vinegar
1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
1 teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons curry powder
½ teaspoon Tabasco

Sprinkle chicken with monosodium glutamate. Turn cranberry sauce into saucepan; break up with a fork. Add oil, vinegar, Worcestershire sauce, salt, curry powder and Tabasco. Heat, stirring constantly, until sauce is melted and mixture heated through. Remove from heat. Place chicken halves or quarters, skin side up, on grid grill. Brush chicken with sauce. Cook until tender, turning and brushing occasionally.

BARBECUED CHICKEN LEGS please everyone.

Allow 45 minutes to 1½ hours total cooking time, depending on weight of chicken and distance from heat. To test for doneness, leg should twist easily out of thigh joint and pieces should be fork tender.

Broil Ham Slice, Team with Rice, Pineapple Sauce

When you look for a quick luncheon or dinner idea, think of a broiler meal. It isn't just the steak, chop or ground beef patty that's suitable for broiling. One of the many alternates might be a ham slice.

Ham slices may be cut from the center of the whole ham or from the larger portion of the butt and shank halves. They have only the small, round leg bone, says Reba Staggs, meat expert.

For a broiler dinner, cooked rice is placed at the bottom of the broiler pan to catch flavorful drippings from the slice as it broils. Pineapple slices take only 10 minutes broiling time. It's all served with a delightful sauce, made primarily with pineapple juice and raisins.

Broiled Ham and Pineapple—Pineapple Raisin Sauce
Smoked ham slice, cut 1-inch thick

- 4 cups cooked rice
6 pineapple rings
2 tablespoons melted butter or margarine
Spoon cooked rice into bottom of broiler pan. Place ham slice on broiler rack. Insert broiler rack and pan so the top surface of the meat is 2 to 3 inches from the heat. Broil until ham is nicely browned, about 10 minutes. Turn ham and place pineapple rings on rack. Brush pineapple with butter or margarine. Broil until browned, about 10 minutes. Serve ham and pineapple on rice with Pineapple-Raisin Sauce. 4 to 6 servings.

- Pineapple-Raisin Sauce
1 cup pineapple juice
1 cup water
½ cup seedless raisins
2 tablespoons cornstarch
2 tablespoons brown sugar
¼ cup water

Combine pineapple juice, 1 cup water and raisins in saucepan. Simmer 10 minutes. Mix together thoroughly cornstarch, brown sugar and ¼ cup water. Add to raisin mixture, cook, stirring constantly, until thickened. Yield: 2½ cups.

The first paper mill in North America was built in 1690 at Roxboro, Pa., now a part of Germantown, according to the Encyclopedia Britannica.

HOPE (ARK.) STAR, Printed by Offset

Q. What is the name of these cuts of meat?
A. Lamb loin chops.

Q. Where do they come from? How are they identified?

A. They come from the loin section of lamb. The large muscle is identified as the "eye" muscle. It's separated from the smaller muscle (tenderloin) by a T-shaped bone. These lamb chops show the new look which means they have had the "tail" or flank portion removed.

Q. How are they prepared?

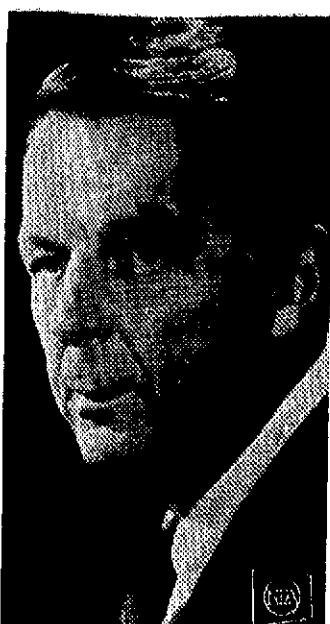

A. By broiling, panbroiling or panfrying. When the lamb chops are 1 to 2-inches thick, place them on a rack of the broiler pan, 2 to 5 inches from the heat. Total cooking time for these chops will be 12 to 22 minutes, depending on the thickness. If they're going to be panbroiled, use a heavy frying-pan or gridle. Do not add fat. Do not add water. Do not cover. Cook the chops slowly, turning occasionally, pouring off fat as it accumulates. If the fat accumulates, it will pan-fry the chops rather than panbroil them.

Leftover Ham

Slivers and shreds left from a ham are tempting when mixed with cream sauce or thinned condensed mushroom soup. Add sliced green, stuffed olives to this and serve on chow mein noodles for lunch or supper.

Bill Dozier Is A Regular Camp Follower

BILL DOZIER

By JOAN CROSBY
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

With Batman a hit, Dozier has the Green Hornet and Tammy Grimes ready to go.

NEW YORK —(NEA)—Bill Dozier, executive producer of Batman, will be producing two additional shows for ABC-TV next season — Green Hornet and The Tammy Grimes Show. He is not the least concerned with preserving his sanity in the midst of the chaos three series can create.

"The less sane you are in a situation like this, the better off you are. I make no claim to total sanity," he said.

Dozier plays an even more important role in the Batman success than the public knows. That mellifluous, throbbing, sonorous voice which talks in capital letters and asks "Can Batman Save Robin?" belongs to Dozier. He was cast by accident.

Before Batman went on the air, Dozier prepared a 10-minute presentation film for ABC. He spent two weeks auditioning all the top voice men in Hollywood for the voice-over chores.

"None of them got that Saturday-morning-serial quality I wanted. I kept saying, 'No, say it like this' and I would read the line. I found out later that no one could do it because none of them wanted to be that corny. Anyway, as we got to the deadline, someone suggested I do it."

When Dozier showed the film to ABC executives, they said they hoped he had the narrator tied up to a contract. "I even had to join the union," Dozier said. "But it's all right. I work for scale."

The Tammy Grimes Show will be a comedy series in which Dozier hopes to display "her wonderfully kooky ways."

The Green Hornet, which stars Van Williams, is "aimed at the same audience as Batman," Dozier said, "but there is no attempt to imitate the show, which I wouldn't do. I'm glad no one else is either."

Thailand's Apasra Hongsakula, as Miss Universe, has enough charm and beauty to keep the world at peace for years.

Pity history teaches that beautiful women have started more wars than they've stopped.

Apasra is tall for a Thai, yet one of the shortest winners ever in the annual contest. She's warm and friendly and she speaks English, fella, but occasionally it causes problems.

For instance, the Queen of Thailand took a personal interest in her and she was telling someone how the queen had invited her to the palace to learn how to walk like beautiful women do.

Only palace, in her English, comes out something like Paris. "Well, it's very important to go to Paris to learn to walk," she was heard to say.

Apasra's nickname is "Pook," which means "fat." If she is, all girls should be.

After she turns over her crown to the new Miss Universe on CBS-TV July 16, Apasra will return to Thailand with two objectives in mind. One is to be a public relations consultant; the other is to pick up on the latest dances in her native land.

"I always miss the latest dance," she said. "As soon as I start to dance the cha cha, they change to lock 'n' loll."

The Boxer breed of dog derived its name from its habit of fighting with its front paws.

MISS UNIVERSE

Miss Universe's nickname is

'Pook.' It means,

believe it or not, 'fat' in Thai.

Make Your Own "Sundae Specials"

Here's a trio of sauces to make your own "sundae specials" any day of the week! Everybody's favorite Hot Fudge is equally good and gooey cold! Glistening pink Peppermint Stick and sophisticated Coffee Pecan are great for change-of-pace flavor. The rich and creamy qualities of smooth-blending evaporated milk assure success of these preparation-easy sauces.

Hot Fudge Sauce: In a small saucepan add 1 package (6 ounces) semi-sweet chocolate chips to ¾ cup evaporated milk. Stir over low heat until chocolate is melted and sauce is smooth. If desired, add ½ teaspoon vanilla. Serve warm or cold. Makes about 1 cup sauce.

Peppermint Stick Sauce: In a medium saucepan mix 1 cup sugar, ¼ cup water and ½ cup light corn syrup. Bring to a boil, stirring constantly. Continue cooking 3 minutes over medium heat. Remove from heat; add ¼ cup crushed peppermint stick candy and stir until dissolved. Stir in ½ cup evaporated milk. Just before serving, stir in an additional ¼ cup crushed peppermint stick candy. Makes about 1½ cups sauce.

Coffee Pecan Sauce: In a medium saucepan mix 1 tablespoon instant coffee with 1 cup sugar. Stir in ½ cup light corn syrup and ¼ cup water. Bring to a boil, stirring constantly. Continue cooking 3 minutes over medium heat. Remove from heat and cool 5 minutes. Stir in ½ cup evaporated milk. Before serving, stir in ½ cup chopped pecans. Makes about 1 cup sauce.

Ground Beef, Grated Potato Combine in Patty

Meat and potato families will go for a burger that combines these two substantial foods.

Ground beef mixed with grated potatoes that don't even need paring cook quickly in a frying-pan, points out Reba Staggs, meat authority. Simple seasonings of onion, salt and pepper won't confuse the meaty flavor with anything else. That's what a meat and potato family wants!

Beef-Potato Burgers

- 1½ pounds ground beef
1 large or 2 medium potatoes (about 2 cups), scrubbed and grated
2 tablespoons grated onion
1½ teaspoons salt
½ teaspoon pepper
Lard or drippings

Combine all ingredients except lard or drippings. Mix well. Shape into 6 patties about ½-inch thick. Cook slowly on each side in lard or drippings, turning frequently, until done. Allow 10 to 15 minutes for cooking. 6 to 8 servings.

Keep the Curl Away

There was a time when it was advised that fat edging around steaks and chops be slashed to prevent the meat from curling. This is not necessary if the meat is cooked at a moderate, rather than high, temperature during broiling.

Windsor, Ontario, is Canada's most southerly city.
